Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

DR. P. B. CARRIGAN, whose interest in the thousand species of woods life that exist in Hempstead county has brought specialists from the St. Louis Zoological Garden to Hope at frequent intervals, was host Tuesday night to a party of about 50 persons gathered at his home to see motion pictures—some of them taken on Grassy Lake, here in our own county.

Quick Approval of Flood Control Is Forecast in House

VITAL FOR NATION

Entire Mississippi Valley Problem Is Outlined to Engineers

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Prompt house committee action was promised Wednesday for the 272-million-dollar Overton lower-Mississippi river flood control bill, which was passed Tuesday by the senate.

Chairman Wilson, Louisiana Democrat, of the house flood control committee, said that as soon as the bill is referred to his committee he would immediately set a date for hearings.

Urges Flood Control
HOT SPRINGS, Ark. — (AP) — Support for a billion-dollar reservoir system in the Mississippi river watershed was urged before the American Society of Civil Engineers Wednesday by Grover T. Owens, Little Rock attorney.

Speaking before the society's opening session, Owens said the civil engineering problems to be confronted in connection with flood conditions on the Mississippi and its tributaries are of high importance to the nation as a whole.

Rev. Brewster Is Scouting Leader

Pastor Accepts Chairmanship of Educational Program Here

The Rev. Thomas Brewster, pastor of First Presbyterian church, has accepted the chairmanship of the Boy Scout educational program of the Hope district, it was announced Wednesday by Scout Executive Robert Elliott.

The Rev. Mr. Brewster has had considerable experience in Scout work and will have charge of training schools for scoutmasters, committeemen and scouts.

His first assignment will be conducting the scoutmaster's training course which will begin Monday, April 27, in the gymnasium of Hope High School. The course starts at 6:30 p. m. Dinner will be served by the domestic science class of Hope High School.

Mr. Elliott urged a large attendance of Hope citizens. Delegations from Prescott, Emmet, Washington and other surrounding towns are expected to meet here.

Many points of scouting will be discussed, such as adult leadership, value of organization, courts of honor, and other phases of scout work.

More than 50,000 tung trees have been planted in the Beaumont, Texas, area during the past year and more than 100,000 seedlings were started.

2 Survivors Are Given Hypodermic "Shots" to Ease Their Pain

MOOSE RIVER, Nova Scotia. — (Copyright Associated Press) — A rescue crew digging through 41 feet of rock and dirt reached the two living men entombed more than nine days in the Moose River gold mine Wednesday.

They broke through the final wall of stone and dirt to reach Dr. D. E. Robertson and Charles Alfred Scadding, both of whom were in agony from the privations they endured during their long wait underground.

So unbearable was the pain the two entombed men suffered that Dr. Robertson asked for hypodermic injections at once.

At the top of the rescue shaft stood hundreds of persons, many of whom had been on duty day and night striving as best they could to assist in the rescue work.

The St. Louis men told their audience at least one thing your correspondent already knew—that almost no one outside south Arkansas really believes we grow alligators here!

Mr. Perkins and Mr. Lentz then went into a eulogy of both Grassy and Red Lakes as an alligator paradise.

"Yet," they said, "whenever you mention alligators the average well-informed American seems to think that they have got to come from Florida. They simply never have seen Grassy and Red Lake."

There was then a heated discussion over ways and means of catching alive a certain 16- or 18-foot alligator recently seen in the local lakes, which would be valuable to my body's zoo.

The St. Louis men are due back home by Sunday, but they hope to return for that veteran alligator.

The problem of catching the largest alligator in Grassy Lake, alive, and at night, in a cypress swamp where it's as dark as the inside of a tar-barrel, aroused a cold sweat on some of the party familiar with our Grassy Lake—but the zoo experts took the notion pretty calmly and methodically.

X X X

The idea did seem more reasonable, however, when we had finished seeing their films.

The pictures ranged from official "shots" of the animals in the St. Louis Zoo to a moving story of long voyages down Central American rivers, through dark and nearly impenetrable jungles, hunting tropical snakes.

The St. Louis men's camera work was fine. They apologized for their Central American pictures, because they were taken eight years ago "when we were just learning how," but the story held the audience throughout.

The Grassy Lake photos were taken only a year ago, on an expedition into Grassy Lake when the visitors were accompanied by Dr. Carrigan and Arch Moore.

May 1 'Deadline' Potato Inspection

Applications Must Be Made to State Plant Board by That Date

May 1st is the last day for filing application for sweet potato plant inspection, which is compulsory this year for the first time. Application blanks and circulars giving an explanation of requirements can be secured by writing to the Plant Board, Little Rock, Ark.

Sweet potato plants cannot legally be sold either by a grower, dealer, or merchant unless each bundle of 100 plants bears a label giving the name and address of the grower and his application number, which will be assigned by the Plant Board on receipt of the grower's application and fee. The fee is $2.50 for the first 50 bushes or less which are bedded plus 3 cents for each additional bush.

Inspectors will start their rounds May 1st, beginning at the Louisiana state line and working north. Beds found by the inspectors to be excessively diseased will be placed under quarantine, prohibiting sale of plants, and the diseased portions of the beds are destroyed.

Approximately 100 applications from all parts of the state have been received to date.

Asks Victim Put Up Bond

City of Hope to Change Auditors; Officers Installed

Mayor Instructed to Negotiate With McDuffie, Stewart & Co.

TWO NEW ALDERMEN

Negro Dance Hall on East Third Street Is Ordered Closed

New city officials took the oath of office Tuesday night following the regular business session of the city council.

Mayor Albert Graves installed E. P. Young as alderman from Ward One. Mr. Young replaces Alderman Roy Anderson, whose term expired Tuesday night.

C. E. Cassidy was installed as alderman from Ward Four, replacing Alderman P. B. Carrigan, whose term also expired Tuesday night.

Officials who succeeded themselves were:

Alderman L. A. Keith of Ward Two; Alderman F. D. Henry of Ward Three; City Attorney W. S. Atkins and City Recorder T. R. Billingsley.

The new officials met briefly, ordered the installation of a telephone at Fair Park playgrounds, and then adjourned.

Dance Hall Closed
Before adjourning the old city council passed a motion instructing the ordinance committee to draft an ordinance declaring that a negro dance hall next door to Robbins' liquor store, on East Third street be declared a public nuisance and ordered closed. The motion was carried unanimously.

Alderman Roy Anderson, chairman of the finance committee, reported to the council that all outstanding warrants had been paid and that the city had no debts.

The council passed a motion to employ a different firm of auditors to audit the books of the city and those of the water and light plant, after overruling a motion by Alderman Anderson who asked that the present auditors be retained.

A motion then was carried instructing Mayor Albert Graves to contact McDuffie, Stewart & Co., Little Rock, with the view of employing that firm as the new auditors.

A special committee appointed some time ago to work out plans to solve the Third street traffic problem made no report Tuesday night.

Sanitary Inspection
A motion by Alderman Anderson was carried instructing the mayor, chief of police and the city health physician to make a personal inspection of the condition of a building at the rear of The Star office and to report their findings at the next meeting of the council.

The building, a hay barn and shed combined, was inspected Wednesday morning by Chief Ridgill and Dr. J. H. Weaver, city health physician. The building was found to be insanitary.

An ordinance was passed prohibiting the unnecessary whistling of trains as they entered the city.

A motion before the council Tuesday night to pay Mrs. W. F. Hutchins, widow of the late W. F. Hutchins, six months' salary, was overruled. Mr. Hutchins was employed as night engineer at the water and light plant several years. He died last week.

The council, however, approved the action of the water and light commission in paying Mr. Hutchins his regular salary during his illness.

Before adjourning a motion was carried to draw up a resolution of respect, appreciation and thanks to Alderman Roy Anderson for his services as a public official.

Big Price Increase in Townsend Bill

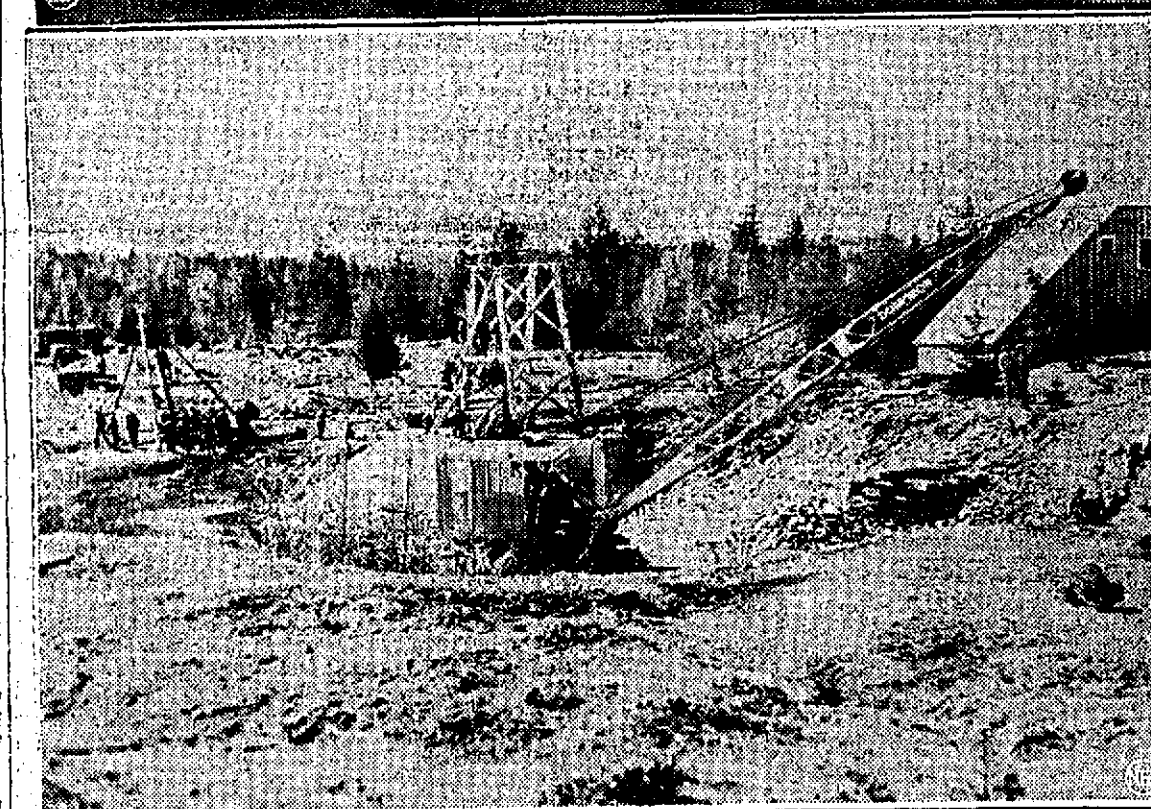

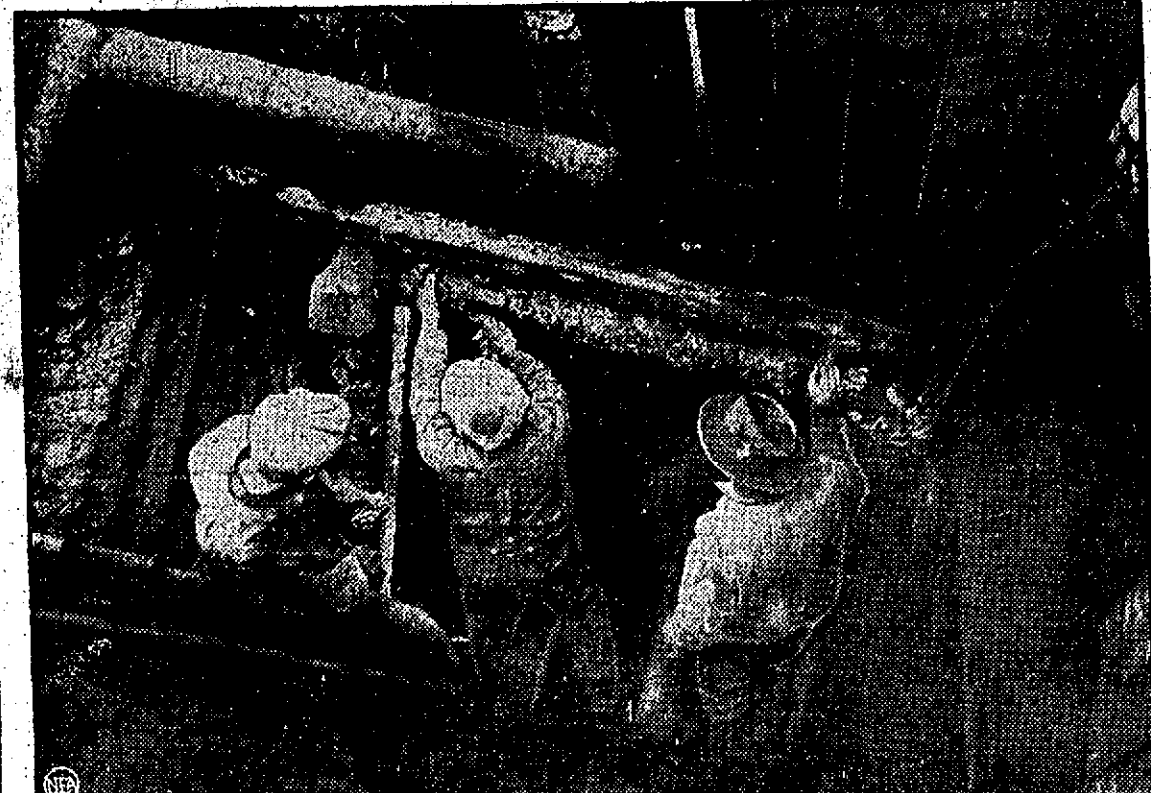

Economic Expert Denies He Ever Said Plan Was Practicable

WASHINGTON. — (AP) — An appalling picture of the cost of living in the United States if the Townsend old age pension plan were to be put into effect was painted Tuesday before a house committee by Dr. Robert R. Doane, well known economist and author of New York city.

A 10-cent loaf of bread would cost 50 cents; a $3 pair of shoes would cost $25; a $35 suit would cost $175. Dr. Doane estimated if the 2 per cent transaction tax recommended by the Townsendites were to be imposed.

In general, he declared, the consumer prices of most commodities would be upped 300 or 400 per cent. He made these estimates after de-

April Term Adjourns—Liquor Contest Delayed in County Court

Hempstead circuit court at Washington adjourned Wednesday until the next term of court after William Chambers, negro, entered a plea of guilty to assault with intent to kill.

The negro pleaded guilty to an attack upon Dazzy Lee Jones, negro. He was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary.

Chambers was the only criminal defendant brought before the court Wednesday. Several civil suits were dismissed before adjournment.

The Charles Rounton damage suit against the Missouri Pacific railroad alleging damages as the result of a crossing accident, resulted in a verdict in favor of the railroad. The case was heard Tuesday.

In Hempstead county court the pending liquor election contest hearing has been again postponed to Wednesday, May 6, owing to the illness of two opposing attorneys, John Vesey and Steve Carrigan, it was announced Wednesday by County Judge H. M. Stephens, before whom the case will be heard.

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Much foolish advice is circulated on the value of massage during the expectant period. It is contended that massage will prevent scarring and will preserve the figure. But, massage is unnecessary, and should never be used except by advice of a doctor and under his immediate direction.

If, for any reason, a woman is compelled to remain in bed for several weeks, she may require light exercise in the form of passive motion. This means merely that her legs and arms will be moved for her by an attendant. But even passive motion under such circumstances must be prescribed by the doctor.

The prospective mother must learn to rest frequently. If she has not been taking a nap in the afternoon, she should develop the habit at this time. Lying down for a half hour if circumstances permit.

If she is not able to sleep, the reclining position rests the heart and relaxes the system generally. If possible, she may remove her usual clothing and take her nap in bed.

Another pernicious notion is the idea that bathing during this time may be harmful. Cleanliness at all times is necessary for the health of the human body. This does not mean excessive bathing.

The skin should be kept clean because it is more active during this period than normally. The body is called on for increased elimination and excretion of waste substances, and the skin is one of the important organs of the body involved in removal of such waste.

There are many kinds of baths, including the shower, sponge, or tub varieties, and those given in bed. Very hot baths cause fatigue. The best temperature of water under these circumstances is between 85 and 90 degrees Fahrenheit.

Even those who are accustomed to a cold plunge every morning will find it best to increase the temperature of the bath during the expectant period. Certainly a warm bath daily is a requirement for the expectant mother.

Even those who are accustomed to sleep, she may take the warm bath at night, because it is relaxing and promotes sleep. If the warm bath is taken in the morning, at least an hour should elapse before the woman goes outdoors, so that her body may become accustomed to the change in temperature.

Tub baths should be avoided and the sponge or shower bath substituted during the last months. This helps the prospective mother avoid infection.

Extraordinary types of baths, such as cold showers, ocean baths, and particularly Turkish and Russian sweat baths, should not be taken except under the advice of a doctor, because they are exhausting.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Children love to feel that they are helping. It gives them a sense of belonging, of being necessary to the home-life of the group in which they live.

"I don't know how I could get along if Martha didn't dry the dishes for me," a mother will say.

Seven-year-old Martha, who has dried two cups and saucers, four orange juice glasses, two milk glasses, four oatmeal bowls, and half a dozen spoons will glow as though someone had lighted a candle and put it back in the blue eyes in her plump little face.

Mary helps me make the beds. She smooths the sheets at one end while I do it at the other. Bed-making goes twice as fast," another mother will say. In almost no time, Mary will start out on a great adventure to see if she can make a bed alone.

Old Folks in Same Plight
You are familiar with old people, whose own active existence is over, who sit in their sons' and daughters' homes, hands folded too often, wishing that they could do something to help. Their uselessness gives them a feeling that they are in the way, dangerous though their children may be of having them there. They want to know that they are necessary!

A child, while too young to assume such an attitude, does not have the sense of responsibility toward his home that he should have, when he does nothing to help make it bright and shining and warm. It is too likely to become a place where he keeps his books and toys and gets his meals. However, if he is responsible for a small duty—never an irksome, strenuous one—he will be happier because he knows that the home is his, too. It won't succeed unless he helps it.

"What can I do to help?" is a cry which children often make.

All too often a mother will answer: "Run along and play, Betty. There's that new book that Aunt Jane sent you and your doll's dresses were just laundered. Find something to amuse yourself, honey, until I'm through."

Make Cooking a Pleasure
I that mother is baking cookies, a far wiser solution to the problem would be to give Betty a piece of dough, and a small tin pan, and let her bake a ginger cake and sit quietly in the kitchen, getting her first lesson in the spicy realm of the cookie world, while she waits for her own particular treasure to brown. The next time that baking day comes she will want to make another cookie. Gradually she will acquire an interest in baking which in time will give her an excellent knowledge of this particular type of domestic routine. She will like cooking because it was fun in the beginning. Her mother will never say, as too many mothers do:

"I wish Betty liked to cook. The child never comes near the kitchen. She's almost eighteen and she can't boil water."

Too often mothers have themselves to blame when their daughters dislike housework. They were too busy to teach them. Or it was too much trouble.

A wise mother takes a long look ahead.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

There's plenty of good, honest melodrama in "Never in Vain," by J. L. Hardy (Doubleday, Doran; $2).

Here we have a story about a young Englishman who emerges from the World War as a pretty tough sort of nut. He had been the village bad boy, as a lad, and the war made everything 10 times worse. So, looking restlessly for excitement after the armistice, he signed up to fight the Irish. Republicans in Dublin and became one of those wild, lawless gunmen with whom England vainly tried to preserve the old order on the Emerald Isle.

That didn't last forever. When it was over, the young man retired to the English countryside and became a farmer. And there our story finds him.

The young man is married, and happily so; but the idol of his dreams, nevertheless, remains the upper-crust lady from whom he took his last. And when she falls into the clutches of a villainous blackmailer, what more natural than that she should turn to her hard-boiled tenant for aid? And what, in turn, more natural than that this ex-gunman should settle the

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD. — Lorgnette and grease paint are unhappy bedfellows, haunted by greasy-eyed monsters, out here where movies are made.

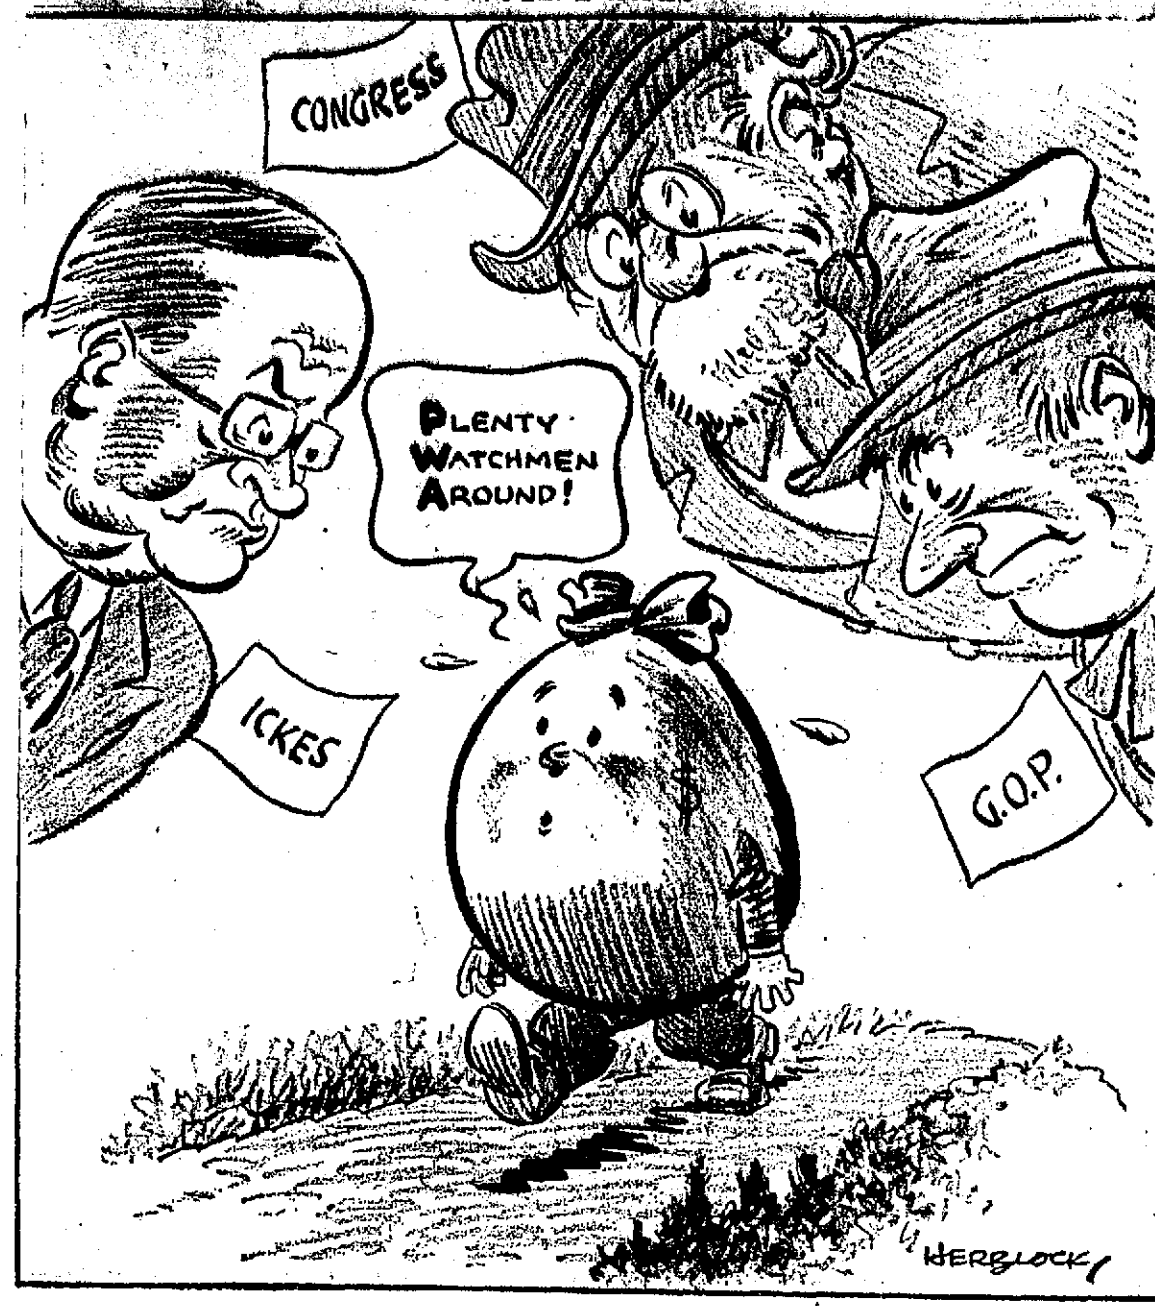

All may appear calm and serene, but feuds constantly are popping up between the blue-blooded dowagers and debutantes of Los Angeles, Pasadena, and Santa Barbara, on the screen bigwigs of Hollywood.

It rumbles the socialites to have film stars steal all the thunder at society events, such as the annual horse show, tennis matches, or the occasional opera.

The presence of a society dowager means nothing to southern California here, where the richest, most fashionable first family—like can appear and inevitably blackmailed's hash by direct action? All this is worked out with considerable skill. The old melodramatic qualities of suspense and excitement being admirably presented. And because Mr. Hardy slips a couple of good, old-fashioned romances into his yarn, in addition, the novel sums up to an hour or so of light but entertaining reading.

P. W. A. Funds

ably the crowd will frown and say: "Aw, that ain't nobody." The next moment it will cheer a second-rate actress who once sold underwear back home.

Hollywoodians, on the other hand, are irked because anywhere else in the world they are welcomed into the society of royalty and riches.

A Class Apart
Southern California blue-bloods seldom, if ever, invite film people to their annual costume ball, the social high point of the year, or to other intimate society gatherings. Uninvited to film colony parties, the society queens arch their eyebrows in aloof disdain.

Among these gals, however, are youngsters who yearn to emote on the screen. Let any of them get within shouting distance of a movie producer, and they primp and act and try to get contracts for themselves.

In the Los Angeles Blue Book, social register of southern California, the gap between city and movies shows clearly.

Only Director Cecil B. DeMille and his family and, oddly enough, cowboy star John Wayne, have been able to crash that Bible of blue-bloods. Actor Wayne's name was written in, after much deliberation, when he married a socially prominent Pasadena girl.

Bitterest pills for southern California society to swallow are occasions when important visitors spend their time in the homes of screen stars instead of in the drawing rooms of first families.

There was much wailing and moaning in society circles when Prince George, of the British reigning family, chose film people to show him around Hollywood; and again when Prince Louis Ferdinand, son of the ex-Crown Prince of Germany, turned aside all society invitations for the company of Lili Damita and Charlie Chaplin.

The societies, however, once scored heavily against the flicker people at a symphony concert in Hollywood Bowl. As Marietta Dietrich and Director Josef von Sternberg entered, in a ring of cameras and lights, a group of important blue-bloods in an adjacent box loudly and openly ridiculed the couple. It was an embarrassing moment, similar to many which occur when society and film folk bump into one another.

Private Baths

Robert Montgomery and Frank Morgan sat in separate bathtubs brimful of hot water, for a scene in "Suicide Club." Montgomery complained his tub was too hot. Morgan said his was too cold.

Obligingly, Director Walter Ruben instructed the property men to even the temperature. A bucket of hot water was dumped into Morgan's tub. The hot water splashed on Frank's back. He yelped and kicked over his tub. As he floundered on the stage floor, the door opened and a group of visitors walked in.

Morgan jumped into Montgomery's tub and hid there, until a diplomatic assistant director ushered the visitors from the stage.

CHAPTER XXXV

BILL'S voice was strained, trying to keep steady. "Oh," he said, "a wedding! Well, I think I can guess the rest. It's Jamie-son, isn't it? He's a lucky guy, Toby, and I wish you both every happiness. Every happiness in the world."

"But it's not," Toby began. "It's not Jamie-son?" "No," Toby said. "It isn't." One of Bill Brandt's hands gripped the edge of the table. "Toby," he asked, "aren't you in love with Tim Jamieson?"

"You don't understand, Bill—" "No, I guess I don't. I didn't know there was anyone else. Well, the congratulations hold, whoever he is. I hope that he's good enough for you."

"Bill Brandt!" Toby's voice rose, exasperated. "Will you please listen to me for a minute? Will you give me a chance to go on and tell you what I've been trying to?"

"Why, yes—sure." "You seem to think this is my wedding. I'm talking about it. It isn't. It's Harriet's. She's going to marry Marty Hatt next month. She told me last night. Other people aren't supposed to know about it yet, but I know she wouldn't mind my telling you. Marty's a peach and I'm sure they'll be happy together. Don't you think it's grand, Bill?"

He did not answer, did not seem to be listening. "Wait a minute," Bill said, leaning forward. "Let me get this straight. Did you say you're not in love with Jamie-son? Is that right?"

Her eyes met his, wavered. A faint glow of pink tinged her cheeks. "Well, you're partly right—"

"What does that mean?" "It means—the color in Toby's cheeks was definitely deeper as she hesitated, choosing the words, "that I'm in love—but not with Tim."

She raised her eyes then, eyes glowing radiantly.

FOR a moment Bill seemed speechless. Then he said, the words tumbling one on another, "Toby, I haven't any right to say this to a girl like you, but I'm going to say it. I've got to. If you don't—if it isn't Jamie-son you care about—have I got a chance?"

She was smiling. "You've got more than that, Bill."

He pushed back the chair, got to his feet. "Come on," he said abruptly, "let's get out of this place."

Outside he stammered a taxi cab and the driver pulled toward the curb. As they waited Bill nodded toward the cafeteria. "It's all right for corned beef," he said, "but it's a hell of a place to kiss a girl. And I'm going to kiss you, Toby."

He helped her into the cab and climbed in after her. "Anywhere," Bill told the driver. "Anywhere at all—only keep going."

Twenty minutes later he was saying, "Toby, there isn't an adjective in the language to fit you. You're the kind of a girl a man dreams about, even though he knows she doesn't exist. She couldn't, because she'd have to be perfect and they don't make 'em that way. Except you, Toby."

"I've got to be honest with you, darling. All I've got to offer you is a $50 a week pay check and the kind of apartment that goes with it and a couple of hundred dollars in the bank. I'm crazy about my job and I'll work hard at it, but I don't suppose I'll ever be able to give you the things you have now—a beautiful home and servants and cars and expensive clothes. You're the most wonderful girl in the world, Toby, and if you'll give me the chance I'll spend my life trying to make you happy. If you think you could marry a sap like me, if you could—oh, Toby, will you?"

She said, "Yes." Feet have sung of such ecstasy. Musicians have set it to music. Toby and Bill had only the hum of the taxicab motor; it was enough.

HE said presently, "I told you I'm only getting $50 a week now, but I think I can get a raise. I've been working for it and Blane half-promised me—"

"Fifty dollars is a lot of money, Bill. I used to earn $15 and I lived on it. We'll get along in grand style."

"But you're used to so much more—"

"I'll have more, Bill. I'll have you!"

Later he asked, "What do you suppose your father will say when we tell him?"

"He'll say he's getting a son he'll be proud of. He likes you, Bill. He told me so. And I think he knows the way I feel about you. Besides, my father would be the last person in the world to tell any one else who they should marry, or try to manage their lives for them. You know what his parents did to him by their interfering?"

"Yes, I guess that's right. Gee, he's swell, Toby! You know I can't believe this has happened. I was so sure Jamie-son was the one I wanted—"

"I did think so, Bill—once. But found out I was mistaken. Tim's all right. Now that I understand him we're good friends. But I never really was in love with him, any more than he was in love with me."

"I thought I was broken-hearted over Tim once, but it was only my pride that was hurt. It was Father who made me understand how different real love is. Knowing the way he loved my mother, hearing him talk about her, and knowing the way he feels about her, after all these years, made me understand what real love is. I realized it was the way—I feel about you."

"Darling—!" "But, oh, Bill, you wouldn't help me a bit! Honestly, I thought I was going to have to do the proposing!"

"How could I guess you would care anything about a sap like me?"

"Will you please stop calling my future husband a sap?"

"Say it again, darling, will you?"

"No, that's not what I mean. Say 'future husband' the way you did just then. I like to hear you say it."

SUDDENLY a harsh voice from the front of the cab interrupted. The driver had turned and was eying them. "This is Jersey City," he said. "You want me to go any farther?"

Toby said, "Jersey City! Good heavens, Bill, look at the meter. Tell him to take us home. We can't waste money like this."

"Oh, hang the meter."

"But he gave the driver the address and the cab turned around. It was while they were making the turn that Toby noticed the card on the back of the driver's seat, bearing his license number. There was a picture of the taxi driver with his name and a few lines of type above the signature of a city official.

Toby put a hand on Bill's arm. "Bill!" she said excitedly, "do you remember how we used to leave notes for each other in the telephone booth at the drug store?"

"And do you remember the page of the directory we always used—the one with the name 'Finkle-witz' at the top of the page?"

"Yes."

Toby pointed to the card on the back of the driver's seat. "Look," she said.

Bill read the name. It was "L. Finklewitz." "Well," he said, "so it's our old friend, L. Finklewitz. That makes it perfect, doesn't it?"

But it wasn't the taxi driver he meant, it was Toby's lips.

False Teeth, New Cobb Anniversary

Kentucky Humorist Says He Has Something to Celebrate

HOLLYWOOD.—(AP)—Irvin S. Cobb, humorist-actor, has celebrated 36 years of married life.

"Our last one," he said, "was the Hardened Arteries anniversary."

"Our next," he added, "will be our Upper and Lower Plate celebration."

Sir Samuel Hoare Plans Come-Back

Undiscouraged by "Punishment" for Ethiopian Peace Plan

By OSCAR LEIDING
Associated Press Correspondent
LONDON.—(AP)—Sir Samuel Hoare, swept out of the British cabinet in the storm over the Hoare-Laval plan for peace in Ethiopia, is expected to stage an early come-back in political life.

Just when, and in what role, he will emerge from the eclipse which followed his resignation from the foreign secretaryship, are unanswered questions.

But the Marquis of Lintithgow, in one of his last speeches before leaving for India to become vice-roy, predicted Sir Samuel "will soon be back in a part even greater than before."

The wiry, sharp-featured Sir Samuel is 56—but a young 56 to anyone who has seen him upon a tennis court or, clad in black sweater, tights and yellow gloves, on the ice rink. In his favorite pastime of figure-skating he can still execute complicated movements that would tax the suppleness of a youth.

Punished but still unremorseful for his part in the ill-fated proposals to bring peace to East Africa, he has been resting and building up his health.

In his rare public appearances since he retired from the foreign office to nurse at the same time a broken nose sustained while skating in Switzerland, he has been able to joke about his troubles.

The accident to his nose he describes as "politically embarrassing" but he has admitted he missed a great opportunity when the Swiss "expert in noses" who treated him asked him what kind of a nose he wanted.

"I answered: 'The same one again!'" Sir Samuel recently said. "Think what an opportunity I missed."

"Suppose I had asked him to make me a nose that of Wladimir Pitagor, the interlocking and interlocking—or a nose like Mr. Gladstone's—massive in its Roman impressiveness?"

"How different would have been my return to the house of commons." He has less regrets over his political downfall.

"Bad times have a scientific value; those are occasions a good learner would not miss," he quoted from Ralph Waldo Emerson in addressing his constituents in Chelsea.

"It was a time I would not have missed," he said. "It showed me, perhaps, more than any other incident in my life who were my true friends and how many friends I have."

The nation, too, he feels, benefited from his action.

"I do not think," he said, "that as a nation we had attached full value to such a significant event taken place in the last two years of Germany."

"I believe, myself, that my nation, whether I was right or in that particular controversy, have the effect of concentrating attention of the country upon real issues."

"Particularly, it concentrated attention upon the urgent need for a strengthening in our national defense."

A shortage of horse and mule was revealed by recent census investigators in the state of Washington.

Today's Pattern

An exceptionally smooth fit is achieved in this slip, through form fitting by gored seams and moulded top. The low neckline makes it ideal for wear with almost any frock. It can have built up shoulder or narrow strap. Made of flesh, tea rose or white satin or crepe. Patterns are sized 34 to 46, size 36 requiring 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch fabric.

April said she would;
Then she said she wouldn't
Vowed she would be good,
Then declared she couldn't.
Blushing a rosy hue,
Dropped some fears behind it:
Hit a violet blue.
And sent the sun to find it.
April said she'd mend,
Then decided not to,
Fickle little thing.
Who can then believe her?
Though she laugh and sing,
She's a gay deceiver.
But a whisper sweet,
One can't help but love her,
Grass beneath her feet;
Blue, blue sky above her.
Though she often chides;
Make a vow to mock it—
Well we know she hides
Flowers within her pocket.

Beauty Culture Is Vital Need Today

Sybil's Experts Return Home From Exhibition at Dallas

Myrtle Spears and Herloise Miller of Sybil's Beauty Shop have returned to Hope from the Southwestern International Beauty and Trade Exhibition held at Dallas. Upon their return here they said that the present day science of keeping women young and attractive is doing more to keep a husband at home and at the fireside than all modern conveniences. Even the most modern kitchen conveniences, telephone and radio are second to beauty culturists services, they declared. If American women are to be lovelier than ever they must believe that beauty is not always born, but is always obtainable, they said. At the convention in Dallas they were instructed under two great artists, Ivan of New York, and Alec Alexander of New York.

Pie Supper
A singing school at Avery's Chapel, three miles north of Muskogee, will close Friday night, April 24. A pie supper will be held at that time, George Hughes of that community announced Wednesday.

WITH THE LADIES

They are plain, common sense suggestions that Dean Lucy Jenkins Franklin has given to the co-eds at Boston University. The ten modern commandments that the college executive has drawn up are necessary observations for any girl who wants to retain her self-respect as well as follow the trend of good taste. "This is an age of independence. We don't need rules! Young women may do as they please and nobody cares!" That is a young cry that goes up occasionally. As a rule, a few years later, the utterer will be doing something along the line of lamentations. She may do as she pleases! But she bears the consequences. She endures the lessening of the self-respect which others have for her, and what is infinitely worse, the loss of her own self-respect. To get back to the ten commandments:

Any nice girl knows she shouldn't allow a stranger to take her to her destination, even if he has a 12 cylinder roadster. She knows, too, that she shouldn't drink in public, sit out dances in cars, powder her nose on the street, use pet names in conversation.

- Ten Commandments for co-eds suggested by Dean Lucy Jenkins Franklin of Boston University:
1. Thou shalt never allow a stranger to take you to your destination.
 2. Thou shalt never drink in public.
 3. Thou shalt not sit out dances in cars.
 4. Thou shalt not be seen with young men who are not careful to obey conventions in society.
 5. Thou shalt not use a pet phrase in conversation.
 6. Thou shalt use discretion in using slang.
 7. Thou shalt not pat or nudge a person when speaking to one.
 8. Thou shalt not indulge in careless affections.
 9. Thou shalt not go to a man's apartment alone.
 10. Thou shalt not powder thy nose on the street.

version, punctuate her remarks with slang and nudge people when speaking to them. However, the doubtful area concerns her relationship with the enthusiastic young brokers, struggling young lawyers, and merry colleagues who take her to movies and dinner and art galleries.

Donn Franklin says: "Thou shalt not indulge in careless affections. Thou shalt not go to a man's apartment alone. Thou shalt not be seen with young men who are not careful to obey the conventions in society."

If the triumvirate of commandments seem old-fashioned, remember that morality does not change its essential code. The useless frills and ornaments are being removed, fortunately. The steel itself may bend but it snaps back to its original position. "Men no longer require that women bring them virtues which they themselves do not expect to offer," another cry goes up. What of it? Certainly a man, unless he is a prig, will grant a woman the right to her emotional experiences. However, being a man, he will wish that she hadn't carried them to excess. That isn't the most important issue, however. Far more important than the glamorous appeal one has in the eyes of a man is the self-respect which a girl retains in her own eyes. Far above rubies and pearls is the clean, clear evaluation of herself which she alone ministers. Having stooped to anything that is cheap and shoddy, unconsciously the feeling that she isn't as fine as she used to be will permeate her thoughts. She will lower her banners sometimes. Sometimes she will raise them higher again. Not often. Leaving morality out of the issue, it is merely a question of sound common sense to travel as swiftly, as gaily, as efficiently as possible. You reach your destination sooner and you have an added store of happiness and strength to bring to it. Any casual fritterings of time and respect, lost along the way, will interfere with the ultimate goal. Why bother with them? They aren't worth it! Dean Lucy Jenkins Franklin is not preaching. She merely is trying to keep her girls out of a knot of trouble.

O'Brien to Take LaCrosse's Place

Jess Willard to Appear as Referee, as Scheduled, Thursday

Pat O'Brien, veteran Irish wrestler of Waco, Texas, will appear on Thursday night's card as a substitute for Gil LaCrosse, Promoter Bert Mauldin announced Wednesday. The change in the program was made necessary because of conflicting dates, as LaCrosse had previously been billed elsewhere for an appearance the night of April 23. O'Brien, however, has appeared here before and is a favorite with Hope fans. O'Brien meets Leslie Wolf of Sherman, Texas. They appear in the 45-minute semi-final.

No change was made in the feature event, scheduled between Toots Estes of Elk City, Okla., and Buddy (Bulldog) Nolan. Jess Willard, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, will appear here as scheduled. Promoter Mauldin said. Willard will referee both bouts. Carpenters speeded up work Wednesday on the new open air arena on South Walnut street, and they are expected to complete the stadium before the fight program starts at 8 p. m. Thursday.

ARKANSAS CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

OUR STATE IS OUR EXPOSITION

On June 15, 1936, Arkansas will be one hundred years old! On that day President Andrew Jackson signed the bill which officially made the territory of Arkansas the twenty-fifth of the United States. The Centennial Commission desires to know the names of all Arkansas people, whose birthdays also fall upon June 15. Were You Born On June 15? If So, Send Us Your Name. Why not celebrate the birthday of all Arkansians who were born on June 15 at the same time we celebrate the birth of Arkansas herself? The Hope Star is joining with other Arkansas newspapers in efforts to see that this is done; to see that special notice is given to the birth anniversary of everyone living in the state who first saw light on the same day of the month that President Andrew Jackson officially made Arkansas a state one hundred years ago. So, if you were born on June 15, send us your name. You needn't say what year you were born unless you want to. We hope to publish between now and June 15 the names of all our readers whose birth can be celebrated jointly with the birth of our State. The names will be forwarded to the Arkansas Centennial Commission which will publish a list by counties of the Arkansians born on Arkansas Day. Fill in the blank below:

Patmos Seniors to Give Play Friday

"Mother Mine" to Be Presented at Patmos High School at 8 p. m.

Patmos High School seniors play, "Mother Mine," will be presented at 8 p. m. Friday, April 24, in the Patmos High School auditorium. The cast follows:
Cynthia Whitcomb—Norma Rogers. Miranda Peasley—Doris Hamilton. Martha Tisdale—LaFrance Simmons. Lettie Holcomb—Mable Rider. Lillian Whitcomb—Mildred Drake. Mary Tisdale—Glynn Black. John Whitcomb—Edward Rogers. Jack Payson—Allace Rider. Joe Payson—Jack Wilson. Jerry McConnell—Rayford Camp. Officer Lewis—Robert Ross Rider. Sam Blunt—Twymen Hollis.

light on the vegetables. Serve potatoes Georgia with lamb patties and listen to the praise of the family.

Potatoes Georgia
Five or six cold boiled potatoes, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1/2 cup cream, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 tablespoon spoon flour, 2 eggs yolk, 4 tablespoons grated cheese, 1 can pimientos, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, bread crumbs.
Cut potatoes in tiny dice. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, cream stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper and bring to the boiling point. Cook and stir five minutes. Chop pimientos and beat egg yolks. Add with grated cheese to sauce and mix thoroughly. Put a layer in a buttered baking dish and add a layer of potatoes. Continue layer for layer until all is used, making the last layer of the sauce. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and bake fifteen minutes in a hot oven (425 degrees F.).
Serve from baking dish.
If you want to spotlight the salad, try tomato jelly and slices of pineapple topped with a ricing of cream cheese. This is an excellent dinner salad at this time of year. Mold the jelly in pound baking powder cans and when ready to serve unmold and cut in slices. Arrange alternating slices of jelly and pineapple on a bed of lettuce, allowing two slices of each. Have the cheese very cold and it will crumble easily. Pass French dressing in a separate sauce boat.
Cottage pudding with maple sauce is a delightful dessert for this season. Make cup cakes according to your favorite recipe and serve them with the following sauce.
Maple Sauce
One cup maple syrup, whites 3 eggs. Cook syrup until it forms a soft ball in water. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and gradually beat in syrup. Beat until cool and serve as a sauce over warm cup cakes.
There are more Daves in the Livingston, Texas, telephone directory than at the Smiths, Jones, Browns and Johnsons.

'Woman in Red' to Be Deported

"The woman in red," who led John Dillinger into his death trap, has dropped her fight against deportation to Rumania. Lacks of funds prevents Mrs. Anna Sage, above, from appealing the federal order, her attorney announced, and she is expected to be taken from Chicago to New York with the next group of aliens to be deported.

Prescott News in Brief

Dr. and Mrs. Paul Fulmer of Little Rock were guests of Mrs. Fulmer's mother, Mrs. Berta Weaver Sunday. Revival services will be held throughout this week at the Baptist church and everyone is cordially invited to attend the meetings. The home of Mrs. Horace Bemis on East Elm street is nearly completed. This will be one of the most modern homes in Prescott when finished. Brother Lawrence of Little Rock was at the high school Monday morning with Rev. Green, pastor of the First Baptist church of Prescott. Brother Lawrence is a great singer, and sang a few songs for the students, he is here to help sing at the revival meeting to be held at the Baptist church this week. There were about 30 representatives of cities in the South Arkansas Good Road association that adopted three resolutions at a special meeting here Friday night. They voted to discuss their program with the State Highway Commission within the next few weeks.

South Charleston, O., is said to be the smallest town in the United States operating under a city manager.

Berkeley, Calif., is building a $1,237,000 aquatic park and yacht harbor.

Texas Is Winning 'Dust Bowl' Fight

Land Is Better Protected by Stubble in Spring of 1936

AMARILLO, Texas—(AP)—H. H. H. neil, regional soil conservation director, says the Texas Panhandle dust storms this year are less serious than those of 1935 for three reasons:
1. More land is covered by growing crops.
2. Vast areas have been listed for erosion preventative treatment.
3. Lands are better protected by stubble left from 1935 crops.

Stamp News
By I. S. Klein
THE souvenir sheet for the International exposition to be held in New York May 9-17 will consist of four stamps comprising the Connecticut Tercentenary, the California Pacific Exposition, the Michigan Centennial, and the Texas Centennial stamps. It will be imperforate and gummed, and will cost 12 cents a sheet.
First-day covers may be had by preparing self-addressed envelopes, up to the limit of 10, and sending them, with postal money order totaling 12 cents for each cover, to the Postmaster, New York, N. Y., by May 6 at the latest. Room should be left at the right of the envelope to allow for the sheet of stamps, which will measure 3 1/2 inches in width by 2 1/2 inches in height.
There is time, also, to prepare first day covers for the new Rhode Island stamp, which will be issued at Providence, R. I., on May 4. The stamp will be 3 cents in value, and the size of the current special delivery, arranged vertically.
For first day covers, prepare not more than 10 self-addressed envelopes and send them, with money order totaling 3 cents for each cover, to the Postmaster, Providence, R. I.
The U. S. Postoffice Department is said to be considering an addition to the National Parks series, commemorating the official opening of Shenandoah National Park in Virginia.

GEE, FRECK, IT'S NICE TO KNOW MY OLD FRIENDS HAVEN'T FORGOTTEN ME!

FORGET IT, NUTTY! I WANT TO ASK YOU ONE QUESTION!

SURE YOU ARE YOU LEFT THAT FIFTY-CENT PIECE ON THE COUNTER WHEN YOU IN THAT DRUG STORE?

ABSOLUTELY, FRECK! I LEFT IT NEAR THE ROLL OF WRAPPING PAPER!

THAT MONEY IS YOUR ALIBI, YOU KNOW! DO YOU THINK ANY-ONE TOOK IT AND PRETENDED YOU HADN'T LEFT IT?

NO! THERE WASN'T TIME! WHEN I LEFT THRU THE WINDOW, THAT COP GOT ME—WE WENT RIGHT BACK INTO THE STORE TO LOOK FOR THE COIN, AND IT WAS GONE!

I'LL KEEP WORKING, AND IF ANYTHING TURNS UP, I'LL LET YOU KNOW!

THANKS, FRECK! YOU'RE A REAL PAL!

Desperate Fight for Party Peace

Both Republicans and Democrats Want Convention Solidarity

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Associated Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON—(AP)—Field Marshal Henry P. Fletcher and James A. Farley are rallying their forces in an effort to achieve rousing party solidarity during the Republican and Democratic national conventions in June and the campaign to follow.

Farley, the Democratic national chairman, credited with knowledge of the political situation in every county in the nation, is working to line up overwhelming delegate support for President Roosevelt's renomination at the Philadelphia convention. He knows thousands of party workers by their first names.

Republican Chairman Fletcher, who took over the shattered Republican forces two years ago and now boasts a formidable G. O. P. phalanx, is working strenuously to weld all elements of the party into a harmonious unit.

Fears Convention Fight
One of Mr. Fletcher's big worries concerns a possible fight in the Cleveland convention. This might lead to a serious split in Republican ranks. The insistence of Senator Borah and some of his lieutenants that the old leadership be turned out and "more liberal leaders" be installed presents a definite challenge to the chairman's diplomatic skill.

"Smiling Jim" always avowedly optimistic, has his troubles, too. Besides the threat of Alfred E. Smith to "take a walk" and the defection of John W. Davis, Bainbridge Colby, Governor Talmadge of Georgia and other prominent Democrats, serious factional fights loom in at least four states.

A major worry is the bitter battle between Governor Horner and Mayor Edward Kelly of Chicago, which threatens to cleave the Illinois Democracy. Others are the WPA squabble between the youthful Senator Rush Holt of West Virginia and Harry Hopkins; EPIC Democrats versus the McAdoo forces in California and a Minnesota inter-party fight where two Democratic factions are holding separate state conventions.

In addition to a national political organization rated by some oldtime observers as the most powerful in the nation's history, Farley has the advantage of Democratic ascendancy in a vast majority of the states. All but 11 governors are Democrats.

Savior for Farley
Chairman Farley and the Democratic national committee can concentrate their attention on the single job of keeping Mr. Roosevelt in the White House. Chairman Fletcher and his committee colleagues, however, must build up a strong party organization for future support of a standard-bearer whose identity is now unknown.

Shenandoah, Ia., recently adopted a 65-year age limit for school teachers.

When F. R.'s Away, So's His Aide

The boss isn't the only person at the White House who can enjoy a vacation. Here Grace Tully, secretary to President Roosevelt for eight years, is shown as she absorbed a little Florida sunshine, taking a rest at Coral Gables while the president enjoyed his fishing trip.

Schmeling Will Fight Joe Louis

German Returns to New York for Near-Title Bout in June

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Max Schmeling came back to New York Tuesday. "It is now or never for me," he said. "I know I will never get another chance in an important bout here unless I can beat your Joe Louis. That's what I intend to do."

The German and Louis are to meet in the Yankee Stadium in June for the right to battle James J. Braddock for the heavyweight title in September. "I don't say I'll knock Louis out, but I'm sure I can defeat him," he went on. "I regard him as a very good fighter. But he isn't unbeatable. He has never been called upon to face a man who would trade punches with him."

Schmeling was accompanied only by Max Machon, his trainer. He was met at quarantine by Promoter Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club. Manager Joe Jacobs and a near record turn-out of boxing writers, photographers and newsreel men.

Max said Anny Ondra, his film star wife, may come to New York a few days before the fight but that she will not see him in the ring against Louis.

Although absent from the ring since he operated on Paulino in Berlin last July, Schmeling looks to be in good trim. He weighs 192 pounds, only four more than he plans to scale against Louis. He is heavily tanned from much golf and road work on his Band-Sparrow estate.

Ethiopia's Last Stand
ADDIS ABABA.—(AP)—Italy's army still is nearly 200 miles away from this ancient city, the government said Tuesday night.

"The crude, steep highway from Dessye, a town now in the hands of Italians, still is practically clear of the European invaders."

An Addis Ababa correspondent reported to London that an Ethiopian infantry column had reached an Italian airbase northwest of Dessye and burned 19 Italian airplanes and the entire gasoline supply.

There were indications that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italian commander, might attempt to thwart Emperor Haile Selassie's defense plans by a surprise advance on Addis Ababa from the east or southwest.

From Dessye, Badoglio's next push could skirt the Shoa mountains, where they meet the Danakil desert, in an attempt to reach the capital from Ankober. He could even seek to join the Italian Somaliland or Southern forces at Hawash and follow the railroad into Addis Ababa.

How Cardui Helps Month After Month

Where there have been severe pains every month, from functional disturbances resulting from poor nourishment, Cardui has helped thousands of women to obtain relief. Their confidence in Cardui makes them eager to recommend it to other women needing such a medicine.

"I suffered a great deal with pain in my side and a weakness in my back," writes Mrs. Walter Page, of Evansville, Ind. "This made me so nervous I couldn't rest. Each month I would suffer all over and would have to go to bed. One of my neighbors told me how Cardui helped her, so I took it and it helped me. After taking eight bottles, I was much better. I surely can recommend Cardui for weakness and pain."

Of course, if Cardui does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Amos, Andy Win Fair 'Cab' Fares

Isn't it just like Amos 'n' Andy, of radio fame, to open a Palm Springs, Calif., branch of the "Fresh Air Taxi Cab Company, Incorporated," without taxicabs? But then, studying the fares—debutante Virginia Swagles, left, and Emma Mae Herberger—of their long-eared "cabs," maybe the comedians aren't so impractical, especially since the pick and shovel hint that they're doing some prospecting on the side. If the vacationing Freeman Gosden (Amos), left, and Charles Correll (Andy), continue to tan under that torrid California sun, their "mike" dialect soon won't seem so out of place.

livering an opinion that the program calling for the payment of $200 a month to all persons over 60 was "utterly impossible."

The committee members emphasized Dr. Doane's statement because he has been quoted in the Townsend Weekly as having rendered a report showing the economic soundness of the Townsend plan.

"I can't understand how they could make such a statement," testified the witness.

"Certain statements have been lifted from my 1935 testimony before the senate and house committees and distorted. I have been misrepresented and I wrote Dr. Townsend to that effect last January but received no reply."

Representative Claire O. Hoffman (Rep., Mich.) said the committee had discovered that state organizers for the Townsend plan were telling the asset that Doane had endorsed the plan.

"That is absolutely untrue," said Doane. "Instead of aiding employment, it would increase the cost of living so much that consumer expenditures would be curtailed and production would naturally be scaled down, and we would have the greatest unemployment problem we have ever had."

The witness started the committee by saying that both Dr. Townsend and Robert E. Clements, co-founder of the movement who has now resigned, told him they did not believe the transaction tax would raise $24,000,000,000 a year and thus enable the payment of $2400 yearly to the 8,000,000 persons above 60.

Chaco Warrior Is Paraguay Dictator

Col. Rafael Franco Seeks to Remake War-Torn Country

By PAUL SANDERS

Associated Press Correspondent
BUENOS AIRES.—(AP)—Colonel Rafael Franco, most audacious of Chaco warriors, carries on his thickest shoulders a mighty burden in attempting to reconstruct as a dictator his war-torn little country.

Installed as provisional president after a revolution brought by postwar discontent had deposed President Eusebio Ayala, Franco announced that he planned to reconstruct Paraguay economically and socially.

He announced a totalitarian system, resembling both the fascist and Nazi regimes in Italy and Germany, declared a revolutionary party and state a joint entity, ordered other political groups banned for a year, and declared the government supreme abler in all social, industrial and labor questions.

Favors "True Democracy"

The next day he said a "true democracy of workers and peasants" would be his objective, but that "the revolution is not finished and we must govern revolutionarily until it is."

Franco may have contradicted himself in some of his declarations, but he made it clear that he wants to give land to the Paraguayan peasants, raise their low living standards, curb the influence of foreign capital, separate church and state, and give relief to war veterans.

Franco has been protesting against the state of affairs in Paraguay most of his life.

Born in Asuncion in 1896 and product of the Paraguayan military school, he entered the army in 1916. His first serious clash came in 1931 when he protested stern police measures against a demonstration of students. He was retired.

When the Chaco war started in 1932, Franco rejoined the army and became commander of the Ytutoro regiment. Leading his troops, sharing thirst and hunger with his men, he became an idol.

At the same time he broadcast his dissatisfaction with the Ayala government. Paraguayan soldiers went to the war inadequately armed, whole regiments fighting only with knives.

Even when Paraguay began to win successes and later marched across the Chaco in a series of victories, Franco's dissatisfaction with the Ayala government, and with General Jose Felix Estigarribia, the commander-in-chief, only increased.

After the war he was given command of the military school. Estigarribia was made a marshal and pensioned for life.

Franco made invidious comparisons between this reward for the commander and what the government did for the rank and file of the veterans. He became presidential candidate of a veterans' organization and on February 5 the Ayala regime exiled him on charges of plotting against the government.

Just 12 days later young army officers and students deposed and imprisoned Ayala and called Franco back from Buenos Aires to take charge of the government. He used an airplane for that trip.

Married a Sheik

"My husband's retainers—he has a large body of native retainers—got the idea that if I should die, he would receive a large sum of money."

"Once I was poisoned. Once, riding Bedouins stoned me. Once, robbers broke into my room, looted the place and beat me into insensibility."

The trouble between herself and her husband, however, was more subtle, she said.

"He was possessed of the idea that I wrote and said things against him, in English. I would have believed this more jealousy, but each time it was he who left me."

She probably will return to Arabia. She plans to spend the remainder of her life in the desert, she said.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mass bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes three good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely.
